

SOCIETY and PERSONAL ACTIVITIES of WOMEN

SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin W. Mix have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Louise, and Justus Millard Fleming, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Fleming of Elkhart, Ind., which will take place on the evening of Aug. 10, at 7 o'clock at their home, 434 Lincoln way E., Mishawaka.

Affairs honoring Miss Mix to be given next week are, a dinner at the home of Miss Madelon Shidler, 620 N. Lafayette st., Wednesday evening, and a dinner at the Chain-o-Lakes Country Club on the following evening, at which Miss Josephine Ahara, 114 Lincoln way E., Mishawaka, will be hostess.

As a courtesy to her house guest, Miss Ruth Cushman of Norwich, N. Y., Miss Arva Yeagley, 820 Park av., entertained 17 young women graduates, students and former students of Smith College at North Hampton, Mass., with a 1:30 o'clock luncheon at the Country Club Thursday afternoon. The luncheon table was most attractive in its color scheme of gold and white, the college colors, garden flowers being used to effectively further the color scheme.

Place cards indicated the places of the following young women, all of whom are former Smith College girls from northern Indiana: Miss Ruth Andrew, Miss Georgiana Morrison and Miss Kathryn Michael, all of Laporte, Ind.; Miss Genevieve Smith, Rochester, Ind.; Miss Bernice Decker, Fall River, N. Y., the guest of Miss Smith; Miss Thelma Ledbetter, Michigan City, Ind.; Miss Gertrude Windisch, Cincinnati, O., the guest of Miss Ledbetter; Miss Margaret Humphrey, Kalamazoo, Mich., the guest of Mrs. E. L. Peacock; Miss Mary Danziger, Goshen, Ind.; Miss Isabel Hoopengardner Elkhart, Ind.; Miss Cushman and Miss Louise Studabaker, Miss Margaret Myers, Mrs. Owen Windel, Miss Sarah Lippincott, Miss Madelon Shidler and Miss Yeagley, of South Bend.

Miss Annette Frank, 417 Franklin st., entertained 18 guests Wednesday afternoon in celebration of her birthday anniversary. Pink and white garden flowers formed the decoration of the home. Music and contests occupied the afternoon, favors being awarded the Misses Ruth Stern, Thelma Smith, Buddy Fraider and Pauline Fisher.

With a simple but very impressive ceremony, Miss Margaret Louise Addison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Addison, 1221 Woodward av., became the bride of Fred E. Steinmetz, son of Mrs. Ellen Steinmetz, 528 DuBall av., Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The ceremony was performed in front of the house flanked with palms and pink and white garden flowers. Rev. B. D. Beck, pastor of Grace M. E. church, officiating.

The Mendelssohn wedding march played by Mrs. H. M. Florner of Mishawaka, announced the entrance of the bride party, and "I Love You Truly" was played during the ceremony.

The bride was most attractive in her simple gown of pale pink georgette trimmed in the ruffles of the same material, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. She was attended by Miss Mary Doran as bridesmaid, who wore a frock of pale pink organza and carried an arm bouquet of white daisies. Kenneth Brewer served as groomsmen. Luncheon was served to the 55 guests immediately following the ceremony. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Steinmetz will be at home at 528 DuBall av.

Members of the Elks club and their families were entertained Wednesday evening with a picnic dinner at Pottawatomie park by Mrs. W. Eller, Mrs. F. Batson, Mrs. P. Shine, Mrs. J. Hill and Mrs. H. Heintzelman. The table was made lovely with quantities of garden flowers, places being laid for 35 guests, among them were Mrs. M. Hennekers and daughter, Grace, and son, William of St. Louis, Mo., and the Misses Alleen and Helen Fisher of Waterloo, Ind.

In celebration of her 16th birthday anniversary Miss Mildred Knoblock was surprised Wednesday evening by 40 of her friends at her home, 1302 S. Michigan st. The decoration of the home consisted of garden flowers in pink and white and the lawn was attractively lighted with Japanese lanterns. Music and dancing occupied the evening. A buffet luncheon was served from a table centered with a huge birthday cake.

Much interest is being taken in the first invitation golf tournament for women, which will be played Friday at the Country club. Many of the women golfers from all the suburban towns will participate.

The trophies already given are a large silver steak plate which will go to the champion player and was given by A. R. Erdner; Dr. C. C. Terry gave a gold bag; Frederick Flak, a silver flower basket; J. M. Studebaker, silver bread tray; D. Pollock, golf stick; R. Dunnuck, Soudier thermos carafe; Millmore corporation, six jars best cold cream; Dr. Cooper, a fancy gift box. Other prizes will be furnished by the club. Ladies of the Country club are invited out to watch the tournament.

Among the many private parties attending the dance at Hudson lake Wednesday evening was one arranged in honor of Miss Marie Collins, Miss Julia Collins of Michigan City, Miss Dorothy Bateman, Hamilton, O.; Miss Marian Klesinger and Miss Monica Teekough of Milwaukee, Wis.

The party which was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bon Durant, included the Misses Florence and Virginia Guthrie, Erma Sawyer, Frances Hager, Esther Hoke, Pauline Bon Durant, and William Moore, Francis Moore, Barrowman Nash, Doss Ryburn from Louisville, Ky.; Carl Prell, Leo Matthea, Albert McGann, Judson Heyland, Fred Dressel and Paul Pfenner.

Quaint Peasant Bodice Wins Favor in Summer Fashions

Just because you wear a peasant's bodice doesn't mean you belong to the soil. Indeed the lovely blue silk frock with its chiffon collar and cuffs worn by Betty Carpenter in Paramount pictures wouldn't be very serviceable for a woman with a hoe. Shirred baby ribbons which form flower rosettes decorate the skirt. The burnt-orange hat, matching the collar and flowers on the frock, is trimmed with lilies of the valley. The attractive peasant's bodice is in high favor this summer.

Frances Hager is a theater party given this afternoon by Miss Margaret Fuller at the Blackstones. After the performance the guests will be served with tea at Miss Fuller's home. Those in the party are the Misses Frances Hager, Helen Muesel, Mildred Rennoe, Helen Hollis, Helen Gaffill, Gertrude Brodbeck, Wilma Burner and Mabel Good.

The regular meeting of the Loyal Americans No. 1003, was held Wednesday evening at Beyler hall. Two applications were received and one candidate initiated. Guitar music by the Mosera, Netto, and piano selections by Mrs. Alma Beyer and Mrs. Nora Rimerly, followed by dancing, formed the entertainment for the evening. The drill team will entertain in honor of the July birthdays of members at Beyler hall Thursday evening.

A meeting of the St. Joseph Valley Grange took place Thursday afternoon at Beyler hall, during which plans were made for a picnic to be held at Pottawatomie park on Aug. 13 for members of the Grange and their families. The next regular meeting will be held Aug. 11 at Beyler hall.

An all-day meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Grace Evangelical church was held at the church Thursday. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon. Plans formulated during the afternoon for an all-day picnic at Leeper park Aug. 4.

Maj. Grantland reached swiftly past me, turned the ignition switch with one hand, and with the other grasped the hand I was shaking in helpless pain. I was rather proud of the fact that I had kept firm hold of the wheel with my left hand, despite the sudden shock I had experienced.

"Does it hurt very much?" he asked solicitously. "I ought to have warned you of that possibility, and yet it is what every hero has to expect. I remember when I learned to drive this type of car, the small bones of my palm were so bruised that one time they pained me for days."

He had my hand in his, the palm upward, and was looking at it intently, his head bent low. For an instant I had a wild, fantastic impression that he meant to impress a kiss upon it, and I drew it away precipitately.

"It is perfectly all right now," I said, mendaciously, although my heart sank at the thought that I might again suffer the same shock at my next attempt to shift gears. "But please tell me where I was in error."

"I think you used too much gas," he said. "You must remember, only to shift at a low rate of speed. When you become used to a car you'll learn the exact speed at which each mechanism shifts best, each car is different in that respect. But don't get discouraged."

"I'm not," I protested, "And now I'm going to begin at the very beginning." From that moment things went swimmingly with me. Sometimes I made my shifts more successfully and noiselessly than at other times, but I always managed them, and Maj. Grantland even included a lesson in backing and turning around in my afternoon's program. He was wisely rigid in alternating my new tasks with stretches of straight driving, so that I did not become unduly nervous, and when we finally turned toward the hotel, after a whole afternoon's work, I felt fairly confident that with practice I could manage a big car as easily as I did my small two-control one.

"You are perfectly able to take the car right up to the door of the hotel," the army officer said tentatively, as we neared the village. "But I would prefer not to do it, if you don't mind." I returned, stopping the car.

"Whatever you wish," he returned deferentially, getting out of the car and coming around to the driver's seat, which I vacated for him. He looked at his watch before taking the wheel. "There is an hour and a half before dinner. You will have a chance to rest a little. I will meet you in the small sitting room at six-thirty."

UNCLE WIGGILY

The Story of the Jumping Mouse

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily was hopping through his garden one day, wondering whether he had better put any hats on the heads of the cabbages to keep off the hot sun, when the bunny rabbit gentleman saw what he thought was a bunch of dried weeds in among his hills of corn.

"Nurse Jane must have pulled up the weeds and left them on the ground," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "But they may take root and spring up again. I had better take them away and burn them up. Weeds are not good in a garden."

The bunny gentleman reached for the bunch of weeds, and, as he lifted them up a tiny creature jumped out with a frightened squeak, some tiny forms clinging to her.

"Oh, my goodness!" cried Mr. Longears. "A little mouse had her nest under that pile of weeds. I didn't know it and I have spoiled her home. Oh, dear!"

"Yes, it is very sad," spoke the little mouse, who, with her family clinging to her, and leaped away when the bunny lifted the weeds. She came to a stop after three or four long jumps, on a hill of corn, some distance away from the bunny.

"Still," went on Mrs. Mouse, "I'm glad you were not a bad cat."

"So am I," said Mr. Longears. "All the cats I know are good, like Jolie, Tommie and Kittie. But I never saw such a lively mouse as you."

"No, we jumping mice are not as common as the other kind," went on the little creature, about whom were now gathered the little mice children. "It is a trick we have of getting away from those who would chase us—by jumping. But I know you will not chase us, Uncle Wiggily."

"No, indeed," answered the bunny. "And if I had known you were under that bunch of dried weeds I never would have taken it up. Still, the damage is done, I suppose."

"Oh, not so much as you think," said the jumping mouse. "If you put back the weed bunch I can make my nest there again. We live very simply in the summer. And if you don't mind I'll stay in your garden until the cold weather comes."

"Stay as long as you like," invited Uncle Wiggily.

"Thank you," spoke the tiny creature.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, July 30.

Conflicting forces contend this day, making it fortunate in some lines of endeavor, but disappointing and disturbing in others. It should be a favorable time for those in employment, who should take the opportunity to push for advancement or preferment, if qualified. New ventures, especially of a secret nature or with large corporations or secret orders, should prosper, but it may not be advisable to undertake important journeys, removals or changes. Be careful with papers or contracts.

Those whose birthday it is are promised a year of prosperity and advancement, especially if in employment. Travel, remove or change with great care, and sign papers with caution. A child born on this day, although perhaps inclined to be restless and uncertain in disposition, will make a fine success in life.
